

Privacy Policy

Velocity Recruitment adhere to a strict policy concerning the privacy of our web site visitors and candidates.

Certain software that we use, related to our website allows us to monitor the site in order to collate information, such as how many views our site gets. We do not use any form of software to gather any personal information about our visitors.

We may link to third party websites, we are not responsible for any content or privacy policies of such sites. Particular third party websites may use cookies, we have no control over the settings of these cookies, should visitors to these sites require further information we suggest they check such websites for their privacy policies.

When registering as a candidate for work with Velocity, we require personal information such as name, address, date of birth, bank details, contact details and any other information needed to assess suitability for job roles. This information is used to provide the recruitment services you have requested.

We will not provide third parties with any candidate's information, other than is necessary to provide recruitment services. No information will be sent to third parties that would uniquely identify a candidate unless we are legally required to do this or if we believe in good faith that it is appropriate to do so.

Any information provided by a candidate in connection with financial details will be stored on a secure server and we may use this information to facilitate any transactions with candidates.
